

Join us for a public lecture with Joy Ezeilo

Mallesons Stephen Jaques and the Castan Centre for Human Rights Law are delighted to invite you to a public lecture presented by the United Nations Special Rapporteur on trafficking in persons, especially in women and children, Ms Joy Ngozi Ezeilo.

2011 Castan Centre / Mallesons Stephen Jaques Annual Lecture:
Are states meeting their responsibilities to trafficked persons?

Monday 28 November 2011

1.00pm - 2.00pm

Village Roadshow Theatrette
State Library of Victoria
328 Swanston Street
Melbourne

RSVP by Friday 18 November 2011

Ms Ezeilo assumed her functions as Special Rapporteur on trafficking in persons, especially in women and children on 1 August 2008. Ms Ezeilo is a human rights lawyer and professor at the University of Nigeria. She has also served in various governmental capacities, including as Honourable Commissioner for Ministry of Women Affairs & Social Development in Enugu State and as a Delegate to the National Political Reform Conference.

Ms Ezeilo has consulted for various international organisations and is also involved in several NGOs, particularly working on women's rights. She has published extensively on a variety of topics, including human rights, women's rights, and Sharia law. Ms Ezeilo was conferred with a national honour (Officer of the Order of Nigeria) in 2006 for her work as a human rights defender.